Not-so-obvious hazards at home

Portland company makes home picture perfect

This month, we're spotlighting a review from member Sarah Nenni-Daher of Seattle, who shared great details and photos about her home staging performed by Room Solutions Staging of Portland. Angie's List reviews like this one are especially helpful because they include all the particulars along with great before and after photos, which let members know why you think they should hire or steer clear of a company. So the next time you submit a review, don't spare the details or the visuals!

We were selling our home in Portland and we interviewed several companies to prepare our home for Realtor photographs and showings. Room Solutions didn't turn in the cheapest quote or the most expensive, but we enjoyed our initial meetings with Maureen Bray, the owner, and that helped make our choice. Maureen staged the house while we were out and we came home to a great surprise. While she walked us through the house, she gave us advice on how to prepare for showings. Maureen brought in paintings, plants and furniture to present our home in the best light. She incorporated our existing furniture into the plan, too. Every Realtor who showed the house said their clients commented on how inviting the home looked. ☺

Nenni-Daher said owner Maureen Bray has a knack for this type of work. "Maureen drew the spaces together really well," she says. "That resulted in an easy flow throughout the house."

"We came home to a great surprise."
